Trust-Based Philanthropy: What Is It and How Can It Be Reflected In Collective Giving?

Have you heard the term "trust-based philanthropy," and wonder what it means? This webinar is an opportunity to learn more: its principles and practices, the reasons for its emergence, and the impact it has had on the social sector. We will hear from two perspectives: Colby Swettberg, Chief Executive Office of the Silver Lining Institute in Boston will speak from the non-profit perspective; and Philip Li, President and CEO of the Robert Sterling Clark Foundation in New York City, will speak from the funder perspective. In addition to sharing their experiences, they will help us understand how we might apply trust-based philanthropy principles to the collective giving model – how we educate our members, how we evaluate applications and organizations, and how we remain open to supporting organizations we may not know very well.

Panelists:

- Colby Swettberg
CEO, Silver Lining Institute
- Philip Li
President and CEO, Robert Sterling Clark Foundation

Webinar Date/Time: Tuesday, October 13, 2020 9:00 AM Pacific/12:00 PM Eastern.

Please Register by Sunday, October 11!

Your unique link to join this webinar is emailed separately.

Webinar Guest will appear to be the only registration option.
